Subject: Important Oregon Policy Research Project: Minimally Acceptable Level Of Public Safety Services (MALPSS)

Dear Cherryl, Keith, & Simon:

Your leadership has elevated the idea of a MALPSS analysis to an important level of public awareness through the county’s tornado politics. Promoting and following through with this idea took courage with political capital spent in the streets (Appendix A). Thank you.

Our particular interest, and first priority, is securing an independent non-government MALPSS analysis. Second and third choices are an analysis by the Oregon Criminal Justice Commission and the Josephine County (JO CO) Local Public Safety Coordinating Council. An analysis by the Oregon Governor without the step of an intergovernmental agreement would be our last priority option.

Benefits of the public understanding a MALPSS analysis and standards is the simple belief that seeking accurate facts to better explain the public safety issue is worth the effort. Strategies to combat misinformation are worth trying, within the framework that all citizens, voters, and votes are legitimate. Legitimacy has powerful hopes.

The MALPSS analysis concept is sound as an educational methodology tool to assist counties in fiscal distress, regardless whether a decision is actually implemented, or not (i.e., educational tool for public to have the opportunity to understand in a scientific documented way versus relying on professional opinions alone). For example, the simple potential to provide a framework of understanding is significant in realizing where JO CO’s public safety program is in the scheme of things. Are we above an emergency level of PSS, or below? Are the JO CO’s PSS adequate, or less than adequate? And, just as important, where is the science and/or facts supporting the professional opinions of adequacy? For example, see Lane County Local Public Safety Coordinating Council’s 2011 Status of the Public Safety System in Lane County as per Senate Bill 77; Appendix A). Why not have the public debate vetted facts versus professional and/or political government opinions which many voters do not trust?
We will be sharing research opportunities with academia once again, first with the Oregon State University (OSU) Rural Studies Program (RSP) and the Oregon Policy Analysis Laboratory (OPAL), School Of Public Policy. The audience includes economic, political science, and sociology students and faculty. The idea is to promote student and faculty opportunities to engage with local citizens in studying and identifying public policy options for the county’s justice system and public safety services problem/issue (i.e., public safety issue).

This approach had success in researching public opinion. During the winter of 2015 Nathan Davis, a 2nd year graduate student at OSU, formally settled on tiering his Master's of Public Policy (MPP) Essay research paper to the county’s public safety issue. He is in the OSU School of Public Policy which is part of the OSU RSP. The Exploratory Committee is pleased to announce Davis is nearing completion of his research paper which addresses the question: What Do Josephine County Citizens Really Think About Public Safety?, by analyzing public opinions. The MPP addresses what the citizens think about public safety, by relying on citizens to identify problems, and formulate their own goals and solutions for the future. His database for the research paper is the voting history of the last five levies from 2012 - 2015, over 800 letters-to-the-editor (LTTE) and 10 guest opinions in The Grants Pass Daily Courier, for those same years, and the arguments, pro and con in the five voters pamphlets. The Committee’s opinion is that LTTE, guest opinions, and pamphlet arguments are not intended to be representative measures of public opinion; rather, they are public opinion.

In summary, we will again propose research projects (e.g., public opinion, mandated PSS, MALPSS standards, vetted public inventories, zero based budgeting, law enforcement staffing standards, etc.) to academia. The MALPSS opportunity will be stressed as this is a statewide issue where many counties could request a MALPSS, and the solutions from MALPSS analyses and decisions involve all Oregon taxpayers paying half the bill. Significant is the history of the RSP and OPAL having a strong record of involvement in important Oregon policy issues.

Sincerely,

Mike Walker, Chair

p.s., We doubt that the House Bill 3453 process is dead as a potential public safety alternative solution, regardless of the political opinions of Representative Duane Stark, Representative Carl Wilson, and Senator Herman Baertschiger Jr.

Our rationale for this position is that it is difficult for us to understand our local legislators’ positions after the Oregon Legislature used forward thinking to address potential public safety fiscal emergencies by passing the 2009 legislation on the MALPSS planning and decision-making process. We don’t know that its not a good plan per Representative Wilson’s comments. We do know that the Oregon Legislature aggressively acted in anticipation of the loss of federal payments and continued to refine its technical planning concept through 2013: Oregon Senate Bill 77 (2009), Oregon House Bill 4176 (2012), and Oregon House Bill 3453 (2013). We also know that House Bill 3453 is one possible solution, in a range of publically identified alternative solutions to the county’s public safety issue. We wonder if the county commissioners could ask for only a MALPSS analysis from the Oregon Governor?

The Exploratory Committee has been proposing a Josephine County MALPSS Research Project since 2015. It believes the MALPSS concept is sound as an educational methodology tool to assist counties in fiscal distress, whether it is actually implemented, or not (i.e., educational tool for public to have the opportunity to understand in a scientific documented way versus relying on professional opinions alone). For example, the simple potential to provide a framework of understanding is significant in realizing where JO CO’s public safety program is in the scheme of things. Are we above an emergency level of PSS, or below? Are the JO CO’s PSS adequate, or less than adequate? And, just as important, where is the science and/or facts supporting the professional opinions of adequacy?
